

My Experience with MoneyGram's F1 Sponsorship

As a Marketing Analyst at MoneyGram, I helped transform our F1 sponsorship from a branding opportunity into a powerful customer acquisition engine through strategic campaign activations and data-driven decision making.

My Role: Marketing Analyst at MoneyGram and Transferable Skills

Campaign Analytics

Tracked and analyzed performance metrics across all F1 sponsorship activations, providing weekly reports to leadership on ROI and customer acquisition costs

Cross-Functional Collaboration

Coordinated with digital, creative, and social teams to ensure cohesive messaging and integration of F1 partnership assets across channels

Budget Management

Monitored $1.2M activation budget allocation, optimizing spend based on campaign performance and audience engagement data

These analytical and strategic skills are directly applicable to sponsorship activation roles across industries, including aviation and travel.

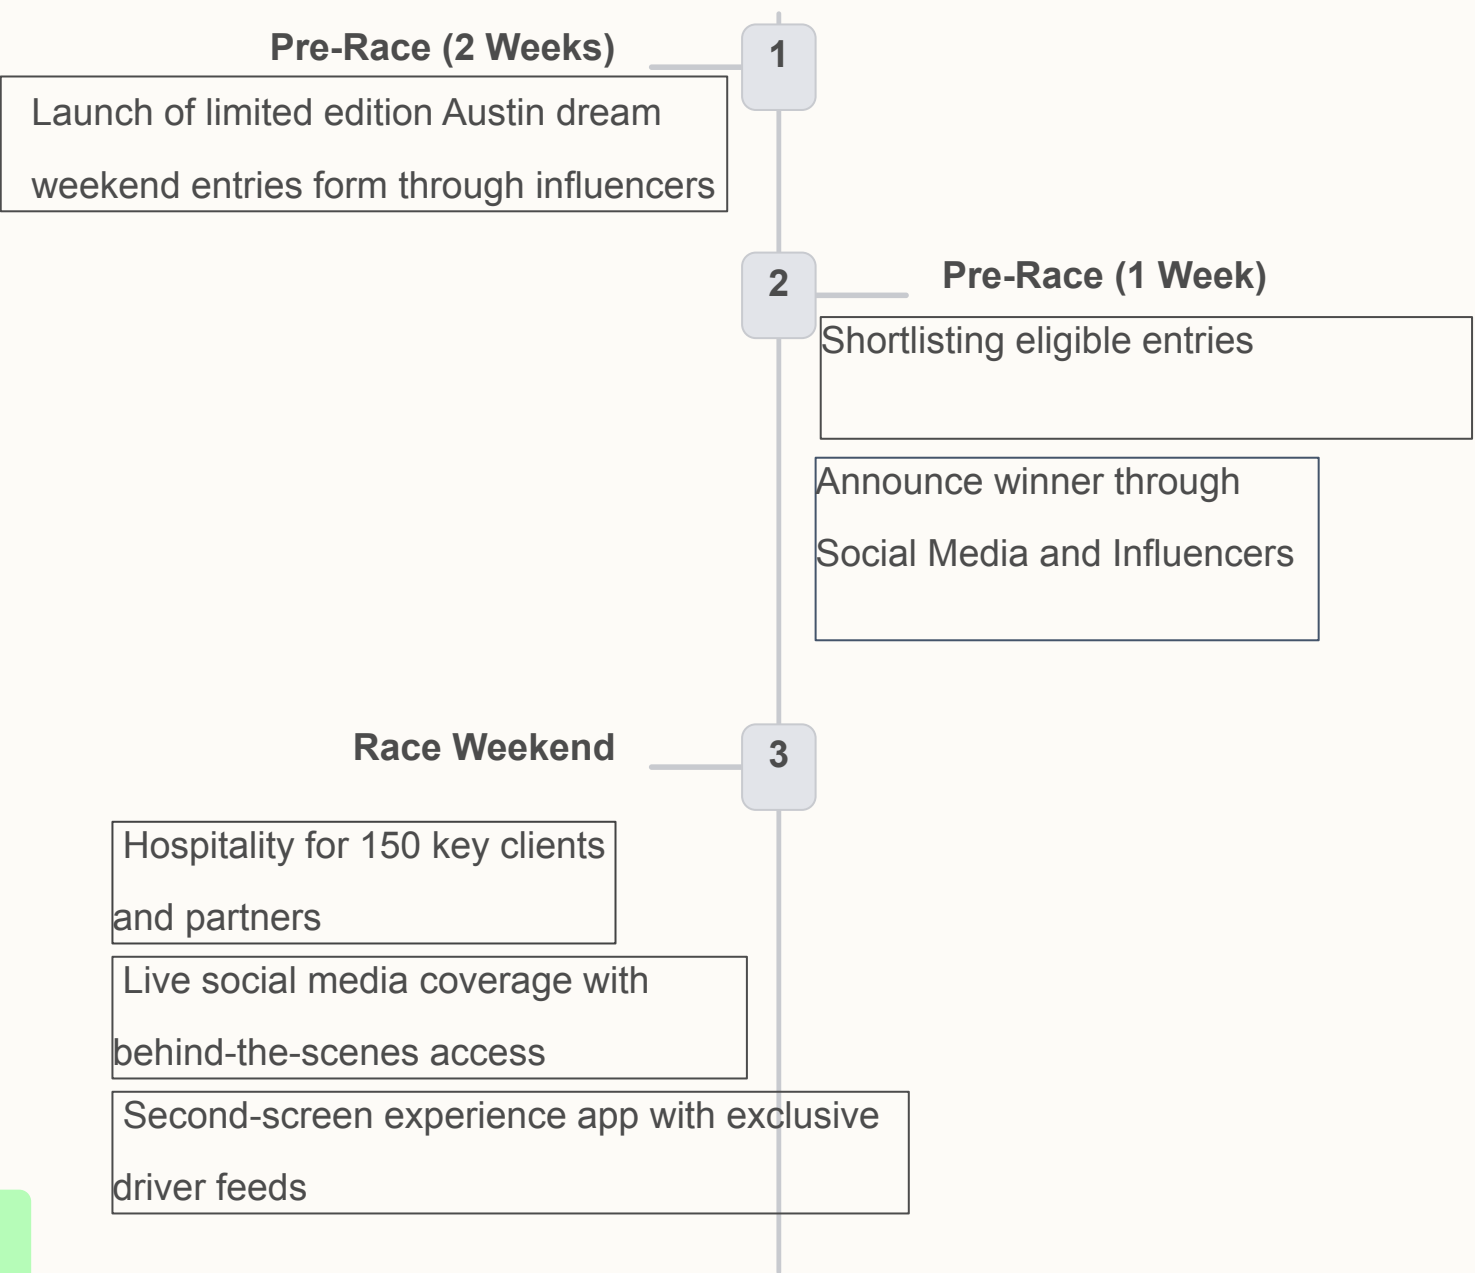

Dream Weekend Campaign: Strategy, Execution, and Metrics

Executed a multi-channel sweepstakes offering fans a VIP F1 experience including:

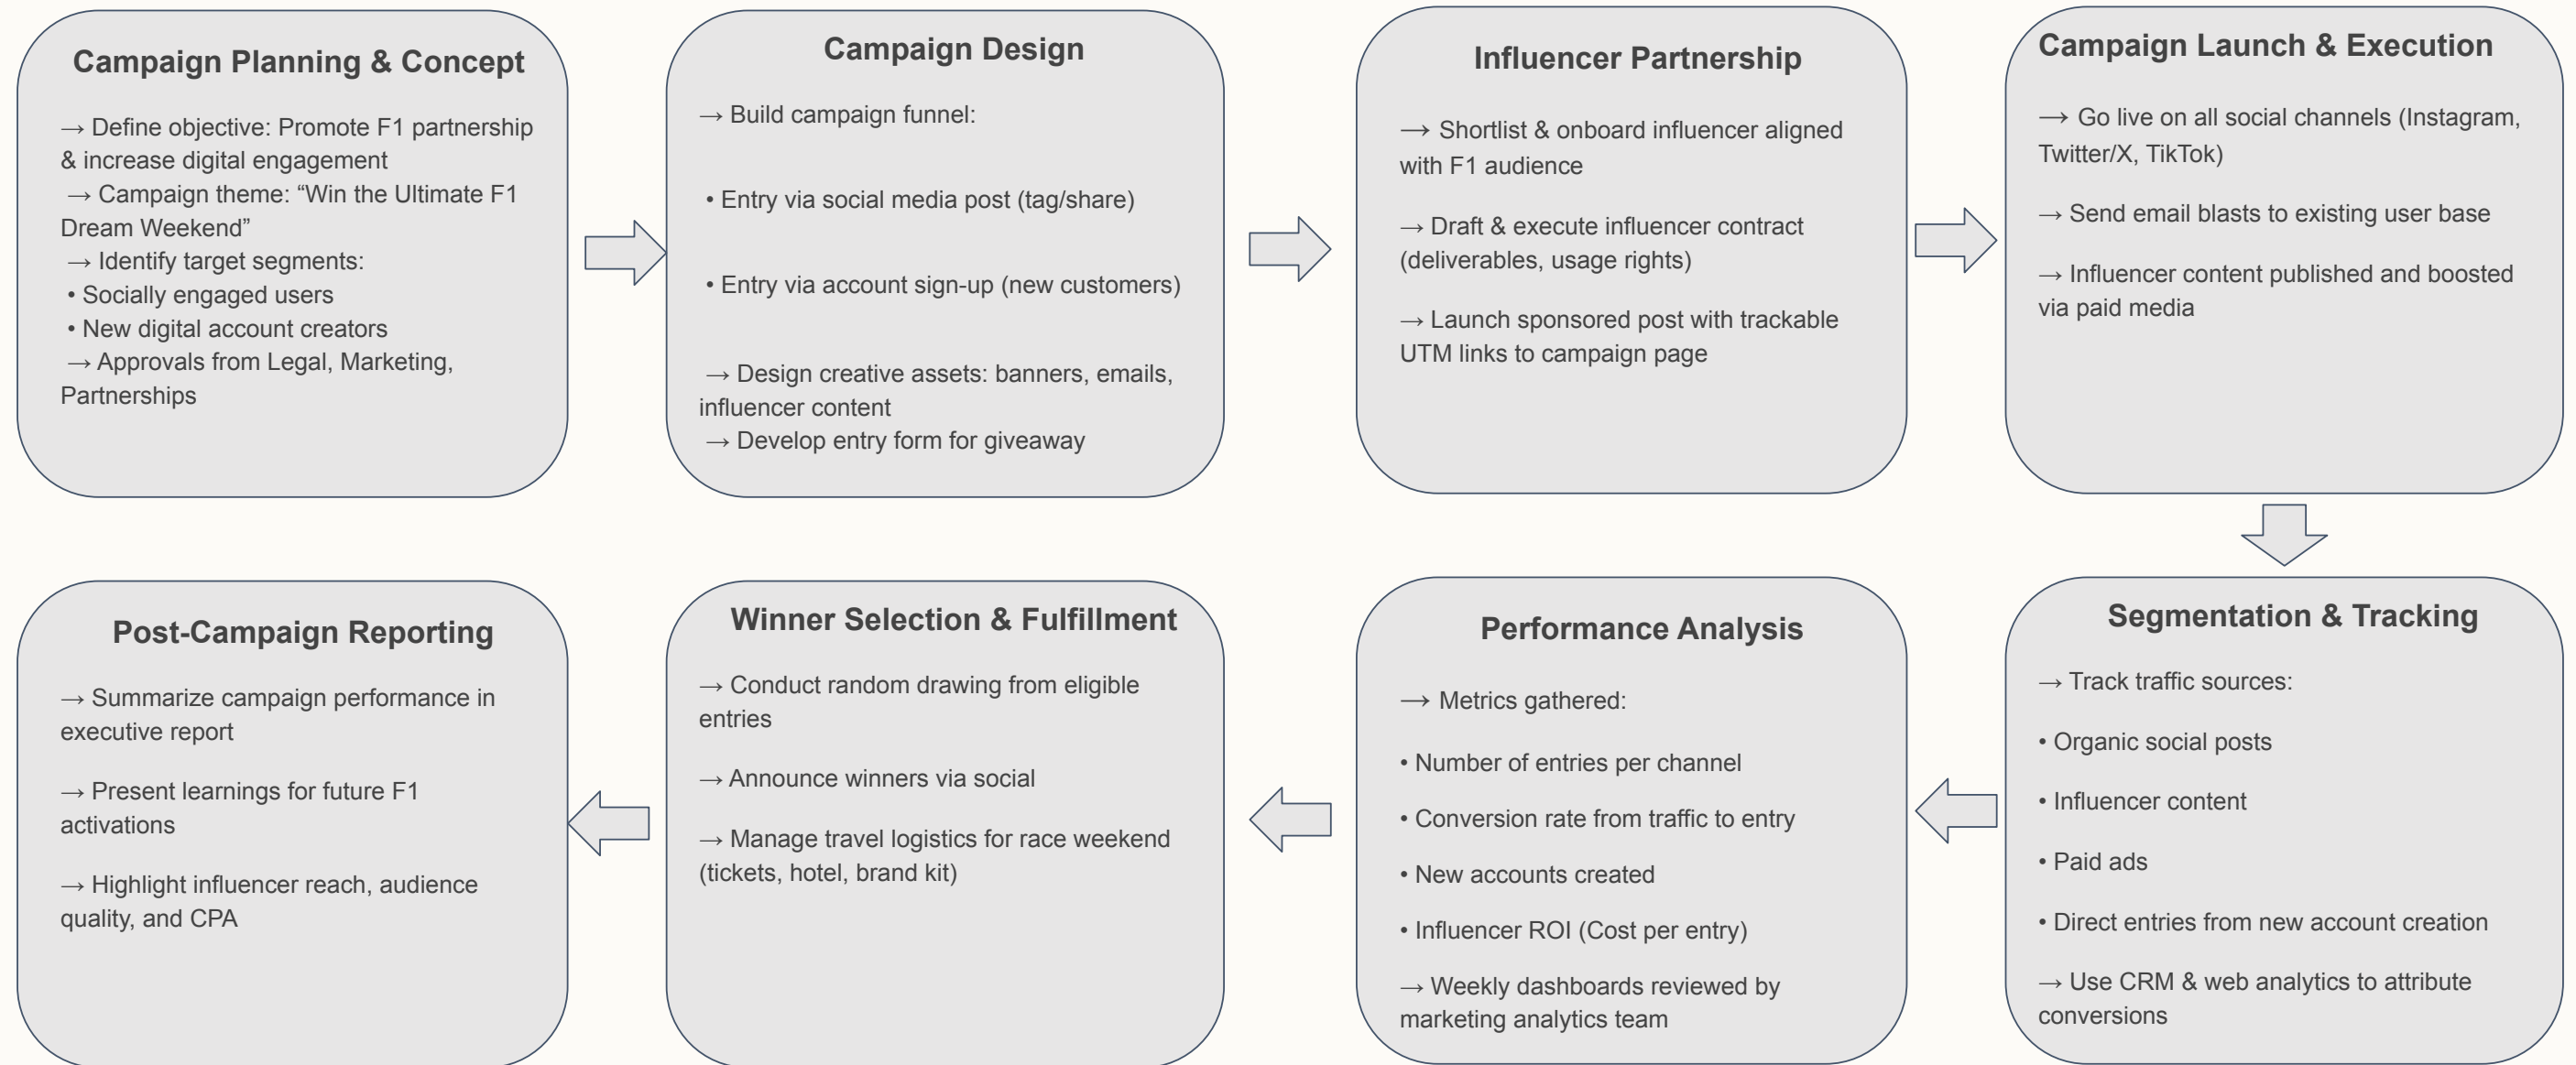

- Race weekend passes with paddock access
- Luxury hotel accommodations
- Meet and greet with MoneyGram Haas F1 drivers
- Exclusive team merchandise package

Campaign drove 12,000+ app downloads and 8,500 new customer registrations within a three-week period

Key Insights and Applications for Sponsorship Strategy

Data-Driven Activation

Focus on measurable campaigns with clear conversion pathways from engagement to app download or purchase

Experiential Marketing

Create memorable "money can't buy" experiences that generate authentic social sharing and word-of-mouth

Consistent Measurement

Establish clear KPIs that connect sponsorship activities directly to business objectives

My experience optimizing MoneyGram's F1 sponsorship demonstrates how strategic activation can transform partnerships from brand awareness plays into powerful customer acquisition channels.
